

In the reflection process, it can be helpful to make a list of sorts. It is important to remain objective. JUST state the facts, WITHOUT judgment. It might be helpful for each member of your family to do the same reflection process and then get together to plan what will happen next semester.

Question	Answer	Notes	Adaptations to implement
What worked/successes?
Why?
What didn't work/challenges?
Why?
Did the daily home schedule consistently support your child's learning?
Was your child's workspace set up to create separation from other household activities during work time?
How did you support your child's learning?
Was the communication between home and school successful?
Why or why not?
Did you advocate for your child's needs?
What areas did your child demonstrate that they need additional support with?			